Older Individuals Who are Blind Program

If you are 55 or older and have a vision problem that makes everyday tasks difficult, Older Individuals Who Are Blind (OIB) services may be able to help you gain the confidence you need to live independently.

Contact the OIB Helpline to get started. They'll connect you with a local representative who will conduct an assessment and evaluation for equipment and training. They will also provide information and referrals with a detailed guide which includes information on adjusting to blindness and low visions, tips for performing everyday activities, community services, and other resources.
